

Brookhaven National Laboratory

Background

My name is Qin Liu. I am currently a research associate in the department of biosciences at BNL, and came here after earning my PhD in biology from University of Alberta in Canada. I enjoy cooking, volunteering and interacting with people of diverse cultural backgrounds.

ASAP

ASAP plays an important role in the life of every young researcher at BNL, and I am running for an ASAP position to further develop this link. I intend to focus on the following goals:

- Provide guidance for incoming researchers before their moving to Long Island. Also, help them adapt to the life here, particularly for persons from countries other than the US.
- Organize more networking events, workshops focusing on career development and/or job opportunities. (I am currently helping to organize the Young Researcher Symposium.)
- Generate different social events to let postdocs and students have a relaxing and entertaining time.

I hope that together we can improve our life here.
